Oliver from Hove is 8 years old, he has cerebral palsy and is in need of an operation. There is no cure for cerebral palsy, but Oliver has been offered hope by Great Ormond Street Children Hospital as he is a good candidate for the life changing operation called Selective Dorsal Rhizotomy (SDR).

Unfortunately this procedure is not funded by the NHS nor is all the post operation physiotherapy required for the next couple of years. The bill from Great Ormond Street Hospital is £27,000 and the cost of rehabilitation related to SDR is £10,000 per year. www.oliversharman.com
